NAPHL SETS NEW STANDARD FOR NAHL ADVANCEMENT

The North American Prospects Hockey League (NAPHL) is pleased to announce 24 current or former players were selected in the 2021 North American Hockey League (NAHL) Draft, which was held on Wednesday, July 14th.

In addition to the 24 players who were drafted, a record number of 65 players who played in the league during the 2020-21 season signed NAHL tenders for the upcoming 2021-22 season.

In total, a record-breaking total of 89 NAPHL players were either drafted or tendered by NAHL teams for the upcoming 2020-21 season.

The NAPHL has proved over the years that the league is a great stepping-stone for development and training for young hockey players looking to gain experience and knowledge to work their way up to the National level. No other USA Hockey Midget Tier I league has had more players play in the NAHL over the course of the last three seasons than the NAPHL, which included more than 80 NAPHL alumni playing in the NAHL during the 2020-21 season.

Colorado Springs Tigers 18U forward Marc Fletemeyer was one of dozens of current and former NAPHL players selected in the 2021 NAHL Draft.

“As we enter our 13th season, the benefits of the NAHL’s ladder of development exposure model that is exclusive to the NAPHL has never been stronger or more prevalent. NAHL teams are seeing these players multiple times throughout a season and their selections are based on in-person scouting at NAPHL events,” said NAPHL Director Tony Zasowski. “In addition, the NAPHL players have benefitted from attending NAHL Combines, NAHL team pre-draft tryout camps, and the addition of the Fall League have all added to the exposure opportunities. No other youth league in USA Hockey has a model like it and these results are one of the byproducts of the system.”

No other USA Hockey youth league does more for its players than the NAPHL. Operated by the full-time staff of the North American Hockey League (NAHL), who make it their mission to outperform others both on and off the ice in promoting its players. NAPHL players are recognized on the league’s website and social media outlets, which receive millions of pageviews and social media engagements annually. This also includes broadcasts and play-by-play of every game on HockeyTV, highlights from every game on social media, monthly and yearly award recognition, feature stories, and real-time statistics.

Members of the NAPHL get the opportunity to attend some of the most dynamic and highly scouted events. Selected NAPHL events take place during the same time as NAHL events, which usually feature every NCAA Division 1 and every NHL team along with dozens of junior scouts under one roof. No matter what age classification you compete, the NAPHL provides the most dynamic vertical exposure structure designed specifically to educate, develop, expose and advance players in the NAPHL.

HOW THE NAHL CONTINUED SUCCESS IN 2021

NAHL Commissioner Mark Frankenfeld awards the Robertson Cup back on June 22. The NAHL was one of the few junior leagues in North America to complete a full season in 2020-21.

Working hard with a little creativity from beginning to end, the North American Hockey League successfully navigated the uncertain 2020-21 season.

A year after not being able to host a championship, it was with a sense of pride that the NAHL arrived at the end of its Robertson Cup Playoffs, with an added twist.

Along with crowning the Shreveport Mudbugs as champions in Blaine, Minnesota on June 22, the NAHL also conducted a variation of its Top Prospects Tournament that is usually a midseason recruiting highlight.

After being unable to complete the 2019-20 season because of the COVID-19 pandemic, the NAHL embarked upon the 2020-21 season Oct. 8, about a month later than normal. The majority of the 23 active teams — down three from the season before and six short of the number getting ready to enter the 2021-22 season — played 56 games but the Midwest Division played 48 and there were a few other variations.

“Going back to the beginning and watching our owners react and trying to find ways to keep the league going,” commissioner Mark Frankenfeld said. “We’ve got a lot of owners in our league who are entrepreneurs and builders and creators. Those types of people are the ones that find a way. They were getting through this with patience and the perseverance. The ability and the desire to find a way was really refreshing.”

Plans were made, scrapped and revised when necessary as the league dealt with changing times and unforeseen challenges.

Frankenfeld said the respect he already had for the owners grew with what he witnessed.

“Just watching their desire to find a way, watching these folks play games without fans,” he said. “New Mexico didn’t play a home game. Other teams played some games on the road; playing in pods up in the Dakotas and just finding a way for the players to stay on the ice.”

Frankenfeld compared it to the way the league has grown and navigated the changing landscape of U.S. juniors during the 2000s.

“We were just kind of wading through those waters and finding a way,” he said.

HOW THE NAHL CONTINUED SUCCESS IN 2021

The Top Prospects Tournament was one example.

"We did a lot of scheduling and rescheduling," Frankenfeld said. "We probably looked at 20 different variations and templates. The [NAHL] Showcase didn't happen and that was a disappointment. It's one of our marquee events and it's so important for our players, but with the NCAA blackout on recruiting and other timing, we just couldn't do the Showcase."

"The owners felt they owed it to the players to do the Top Prospects."

It paid off.

"We had a lot of commitments," he said. "We set another single-season record this past season, which included a record number of Division I commitments. We felt we owed it to the players who could get that extra value out of it to have it at the Robertson Cup. Our goal is to make sure that we continue to do our job of developing these players and make sure that when it's time for them to be seen or time for them to move on to the NCAA, they're ready."

The NAHL has built a reputation for doing just that.

During the 2020-21 season, a record number of 395 NAHL players made NCAA commitments, with 293 of those (74%) being a record number of NCAA Division I commitments.

The NAHL Showcase also plays a big role in that success, with dozens of players each season earning an NCAA Division I opportunity during and following their participation in the event. The event returns this week after a hiatus in 2020.

Dubbed 'The Greatest Show on Ice,' the Showcase provides for interdivisional play with all the league's teams in one place and also has divisions for younger leagues. The event is a staple of the opening-month schedule for the league and a highlight of the recruiting season for colleges.

"They've retained some really good coaches in the league that are respected, and their word carries weight," said Michigan Tech head coach Joe Shawhan, who graduated from the league after a successful run with the Soo Indians, which left him as the then NAHL career wins leader for head coaches. "They've really found their niche in a couple of areas, including their events."

Shawhan had 10 former NAHL players on the roster of his 2020 team that won 21 games, seventh best in the country.

He said the presence of some experienced players that don't fit into the United States Hockey League over-age parameters have helped raise the overall level of play, allowing coaches a better opportunity to assess the abilities of all the league's players.

"It gives you a really good way of comparison," Shawhan said, "and it gives late bloomers another means of further development."

"They can really show the players they are."

The league's expansion through the years has taken it into more parts of the country, which is another potential reason NAHL players are committing to more college programs. In 2021-22, that will include a record number of 29 teams, including new markets such as Anchorage, Alaska and El Paso, Texas.

"They've done a good job from an exposure standpoint," said St. Lawrence University head coach Brent Brekke, who began his coaching career in the NAHL with the Chicago Freeze. "They run the big showcase in Blaine [Minnesota] with all the different levels of hockey and teams from all regions of the country."

"They've expanded the footprint of the league, which I think is important. It gives an opportunity for colleges located all over the country to see their players. And, they do a real good job with their archived video."

The 2021 NAHL Top Prospects Tournament happened as a result of hard work and collaboration between ownership, staff and players alike.

SIBELL WINS USA HOCKEY GOALIE OF THE YEAR AWARD

Jake Sibell believed during his years as a backup goalie that his opportunity would come eventually.

The Isanti, Minn., native understood that it was his responsibility to make sure he was ready to make the most of it when that chance came.

The 21-year-old Niagara University commit never could have imagined he was prepared to produce the season he did when that opportunity finally arrived in 2020-21.

In his first junior season as a No. 1 goalie, Sibell showed just how prepared he was with an incredible performance for the Aberdeen Wings throughout the North American Hockey League season. That effort has resulted in his selection as USA Hockey's Dave Peterson Goalie of the Year.

"My reaction when I first heard about it was to just be in awe," Sibell said. "I never thought I'd be able to achieve something like this. It's just a huge honor.

"I saw the names of the past winners. There are some great names in there, obviously, so to be able to be in the USA Hockey record books is going to be something that I cherish for a while."

Sibell had already played his way into the NAHL record book in many categories. He set league records for wins (43), goals-against average (1.19) and save percentage (.952) while tying another with 11 shutouts.

It was all about waiting for his opportunity, he said.

"I have a pretty competitive family and we have a good hockey family here," said Sibell, who went 43-2-1. "I took some lessons from my father and some other goalie coaches that I've been talking to while growing up.

"I tried to take everything in as I grew up. One of the lessons I do remember is just in general, 'your time is going to come, but you have work for it, otherwise when it does come, it's going to slip by.'

"I always had that in the back of my mind and kept working. I knew it was going to work out eventually."

Prior to playing in the NAHL, Sibell played in the NAPHL during the 2016-17 season, where he put up some eye-popping numbers as a 16-year-old.

Continuing the ladder of development, Sibell played 18, 19 and 21 games in his first three years of juniors before playing a league-high 47 in 2020-21, followed by 11 more in the Robertson Cup Playoffs, where the Wings finished as runners-up.

While working on the individual skills that go with goaltending, Sibell also tried to become more aware of his surroundings as a team member.

When he dropped his GAA from 2.65 in 2019-20 and raised his save percentage from .906, the improvement was a reflection of what he was able to accomplish along with the skaters on a team that went 51-4-0-1 and won the Central Division by a whopping 39 points.

"The experience of seeing different plays over and over definitely helped a lot," Sibell said. "But I think more from the goaltending side of it, learning to be a better teammate was important.

"At the beginning of my junior career, I was a quiet kid who just kind of kept to myself. I kind of came out of my shell these last couple years and was able to focus on my teammates instead of just focusing on myself.

"That brought some good results when my teammates were able to trust me and I was able to trust what they were doing."

Aberdeen Wings goalie Jake Sibell followed the Ladder of Development from the NAPHL to the NAHL, and was named the Dave Peterson Goalie of the Year by USA Hockey.
